A PURPOSEFUL DISCOURSE: INTERDISCIPLINARITY AND THE EMPOWERMENT OF THE UNIVERSITY MUSEUM

ACUMG CONFERENCE

Saturday, April 26, 2008
University Museum, University of Colorado, Boulder

A Purposeful Discourse: Interdisciplinarity and the Empowerment of the University Museum

Presented by the Association of College and University
Museums and Galleries, an AAM affiliate, and hosted by
The Natural History Museum, University of Colorado, Boulder

The university museum can remain an indispensable component of the university's mission and assert its role in the educational experience through interdisciplinary collaboration with diverse academic disciplines. This collaborative dialogue will broaden and deepen the academic experience for university students, unveil new meanings while respecting the integrity of the disciplines involved, and reaffirm the traditional expectations of the museum - investigation, inquiry, and intellectual challenge - by the university administration and faculty.

Keynote Speaker:
Ford Bell, President
American Association of Museums
